The first paragraph is short and sits at the top of the left column.

The second paragraph is long enough to run down the rest of the left column and on into the right one, so the column break falls in the middle of a sentence, which goes on after the break as if nothing had happened at all.

The third paragraph starts with a capital and closes the right column.